Farwell BOE votes 6-1 to stay in Jackpine Conference

By Pat Maurer Correspondent

Following a lengthy discussion and review of the community survey, the Farwell Board of Educa- tion voted 6-1 to “stay in the Jack Pine Conference at this time.”

Superintendent Steven Scoville said of the 91 re- sponse to the community survey, “79 percent was in favor of remaining in the Jack Pine Conference. The additional time was the biggest concern.”

Farwell Athletic Director Donnie Fendell said, “My recommendation is not to move to Mid State.” During Public Com- ments, Bryan Vanbuskirk said, “I think the change would be good for our kids. I think all the kids want to stay in the Jack Pine Conference.”

Board President Joe Scoville added, “I am in favor of the Mid State Conference.”

“Stay in the Jack Pine Conference at this time,” he said. “I don’t think the sports program is all that great. Angela Smith said, “Leaving now would be counterproductive.”

In a letter to district residents, Scoville wrote, “This decision was made after several months of discussion. At that time the Board of Education heard from coaches, parents, community members and students.”

In another matter at Monday’s meeting by Robyns Cal-Chek Tire Taylor outlined the progress of the club which was established last year. Thayer said the club meets every Wednesday evening and has 22 members who are eligible for a step increase. His club is currently recruiting new members. This year’s trip is a Rockstar in Roanoke and will design and manu- facture a robot and take part in two competitions, one at Ferris State University and another at Northwood University.

Police Memorial Honors K-9 Brewster

A special memorial service was held Wednesday evening in memory of former Clare Police K-9 officer Brewster, who died when he was hit by a vehicle last month. Citizens and Law Enforcement personnel from all over came to pay their respects. Clare Chief Brian Gregory said, “Words cannot express our gratitude to all involved.”

Brewster began his career in the CPD with Officer Tom Francisco in 2014. Gregory said Brewster, a multi-purpose K-9 officer, was responsible for many criminal apprehensions and thousands of dollars worth of illegal drugs removed from Clare’s streets. He touched many lives visiting local schools and senior centers.

On Wednesday, January 8th a “gathering” was held at the Clare Depot. Following the ceremony, Brewster’s ashes were laid to rest at the Clare Police Department.

Martin Says Clerks Ready for Election Season

By John Raffel

The Clare County clerk and township clerks in this county have completed the required training to gain or retain accreditation to conduct elections.

Her statement comes amid an audit report from the Michigan Bureau of Elections regarding statewide county clerks in the state. The audit showed that 14 percent of counties, 14 percent of cities and 23 percent of townships in the state have clerks who have not completed the required training to have or to keep accreditation.

“Just in case,” Clare County clerk Lori Martin said. “We will probably have to go over and help them out.”

The county had 16 townships and all have to be accredited with the state to conduct elections. According to published reports, the BOE said 14 percent of counties, 14 percent of cities and 23 percent of townships in the state do not have fully accredited clerks overseeing elections.

“We do a lot of training at the county level to keep them updated,” Martin said.

Correction

In Robert Barker’s column, The Cult of Trump he cited “James Dobson of Focus on the Family ministry.” While Dr. Dobson did play a significant and meaningful role as the founder and president of that organization, he is no longer affiliated with Focus on the Family. Approximately ten years ago Jim Daly accepted the role of president of the organization, and he has been faithfully serving the ministry ever since.

Beaverton man arraigned for wife's murder

By Pat Macior Correspondent

Jeremy Herren, 39 of Beaverton, was arraigned this week for shooting his 37-year-old wife Christina during a domestic dispute on Saturday, Oct. 19th, at their home on the 1500 block of East Long Road. Herren told police that he got the gun, loaded it and shot Christina in the head after she yelled, “I’ve ruined everything.” He then ran from the house, according to court records.

Police were at the home during a domestic dispute around 4 a.m. when the couple’s four-year-old daughter called 911.

She told investigators that she heard shots after hearing her parents arguing and that two little boys were in the neighborhood and that she called 911. She told police she heard three shots. She thought she heard the gun again when she yelled, “What have I done?”

Police were at the home for five hours at a situation until State Police troops were able to enter the home and arrest Herren at 9:20 a.m. on Oct. 20th.

They found the victim covered with blankets on the floor. Herren told officers he had been depressed but said he did not know why he did it. He said he was at a friend’s house, returned home and fell asleep on the couch.

Clare IDC waives funds from property purchase

Clare City got a nice donation from Industrial Development Corporation Monday evening when the IDC, with the immensely beneficial suggestion of this organization and the IDC offer. To the IDC and accepted a waiver of $15,000 is for the purchase of a portion of the remaining acreage of the IDC, the City’s new industrial park has developed in an amazingly fast pace. Only ten acres of the original sixty-acre park remain available.

The recent one-time waiver of $13,000 is for the purchase of a portion of the remaining acreage in the north park and was made by the IDC because it is the IDC’s commitment to cover the facility when an Assistant Airport Manager. Todd will pay $2,000. and one week of employment contract with Director Joy Simmer for Parks and Recreation.

The City Commission expressed its appreciation to the IDC and accepted the IDC offer.

In another instance, the City approved an amendment to City Manager Gary Todd’s employment contract. Todd has proposed establishing an Assistant Airport Manager. Todd will pay the City for the cost of an assistant airport manager.

*Approval of the 2020 renewal of the employment contract with Clare Police Chief Brian Gragory for an additional three years.

*Approval of the 2020 Pension contribution and income levels.

*Approval of Board and Committee appointments on the Clare County Sheriff; the Cherry Grove Cemetery Advisory Board; and the Clare Local Development Finance Authority (LDFIA).

*Approval of City Manager Todd and Treasurer June Santini to the Cherry Grove Cemetery Advisory Board.

*Approval of bills totaling $108,172.

Harmon Middle School’s 7th grade author J. Bowermaster is recognized for his winning publication of "RE: Birth". Bowermaster will be having his 500 word-count manuscript published in the Michigan Reading Association’s Kaleidoscope for the 2019-2020 school year. Only one notebook per student in a district can receive this recognition. Bowermaster’s entry was first selected for publication, but went through the writing process, multiple peer, parent, and teacher conferences to revise and edit his work. Bowermaster remained determined and dedicated to his passion, making it stand out above others. While many authors produced wonderful manuscripts, he had a message that he held…his memoir is about a life changing experience that has strengthened him to not only believe in himself, but to treat others, and learn what family life is really about.

“Game of Thrones” fans had a chance to see how those exciting sword fights on the series were filmed without any blood actually being spilled at all.

It was enlightening to see how it all was done – up close and personal.

Members of the Ring of Steel Action Theatre and Stunt Troupe, who are all volunteers, were on hand at the Pere Marquette District Library January 3rd for an action-packed educational experience when real stunt fighters were there in costume to show off their storytelling techniques that make stage shows, television, series combat and movie action look so real.

The Troupe is a theatrical combat organization providing classes, training, custom services. They teach clays in espionage and stunt work along with basic combat skill areas, held in-house workshops, film and stage choreography and basic skills and techniques for safety and effectiveness.

Ring of Steel began back in 1989, when founder Christopher Barbeau opened a facility dedicated to train combatant actors. Maestro Chris said at the production Friday that his troupe of 45 have performed in “all told about 80 films and over 800 stage shows.”

Maestro Chris has trained stunt actors for performances in many films in Hollywood and also independent films. “Stunts are not just a ‘gag’ in the industry,” Chris said. “The art is very sophisticated extensive training.”

He has trained stunt fighters for movie icons including Star Wars’ Mark Hamill, The Three Musketeers, Master and Commander, Army of Darkness and many others.

Based in Ann Arbor, Ring of Steel provides training at one of only three stunt camps found in the nation where volunteers come to learn swordplay and combat techniques that “look real” but injure no one. They also offer classes and workshops for the public including the annual summer camp that runs for four separate weeks in June, July and August.

Attendees learn sword fighting, star and knife throwing, whip cracking, archery, high falls, and mini trampoline as well as atmospheric effects, and makeup effects. Barbeau said that “safety is the Number one concern at the Ring of Steel.”

He has a second-degree black belt in Kempo and a second-degree black belt in Arnis. Chris also takes it to heart that what Ring of Steel teaches is not actual fighting. He was also a competitive fencing artist and active in the Renaissance Festival when he began teaching stunt fighting techniques in the late 1970s.

He said, “We don’t use real techniques. With real techniques the sword actually stabs someone. We don’t want that happening on the set or on stage.”

A sword tip travels at 20 miles per hour in a swing and has a 1,000-pound thrust. This is what works on film, but not in real life, he said. “Our fights are choreographed to look real without injuring anybody.” He said the troupe trains ten hours a week and 50 weeks a year. They use fiberglass, aluminum and foam weapons, but “they can still hurt.”

Chris has his 46 years of martial arts expertise in training and teaches an appreciation for historical techniques. “We fight with a wide variety of weapons, and we tell the story of the fight.”

During the presentation at the Pere Marquette District Library, three members of Maestro Chris’s troupe; Mina, Jen and Joe, demonstrated fights and stunts using broad swords, rapiers, staffs, and a variety of medieval weaponry to “tell the story of conflict.”

Their website says, “Ring of Steel is dedicated to the development, promotion and education of stage combat and the art of stage fight. No film, or the general public, is delighted and entertained Midwest audiences with our New York and Hollywood-quality training for thirty years.”

Following the presentation and demonstrations, those attending were encouraged to ask questions and examine the collection of weapons used by the Ring of Steel Troupe.

The event was set up by PMDL Programming Supervisor Kelly Spence and was also featured at the library of Michigan.

The Pioneers led past 10-1 after the opening quarter but did get that margin to 21-16 by the half thanks to five points from nord, three of them on a two-pointer by Raker. Hunter Woolston was strong of his own in the third, helping the Pioneers to a 30-21 lead entering the fourth. Woolston was fouled on four of those drives and drained both free throws to help secure the win.

"All things considered, Alexander was happy to claim the victory," she said. "I’m pleased with our

Harrison starts fast but can't sustain against Tawas

By Ben Murphy
Sports Writer

Harrison was able to put in 10, Jarin DeVrieze added 12 points, and Caleb Pitts to give them a 13-10 lead. Fogle was able to knot things up by drilling a three pointer and canned his ensuing free throws minutes to play in the game. The host Eagles traded leads with each possession to trim the gap, by Ben Murphy.

The Coleman boys had small big night with 31 points & BOOTS

The Braves started the second with its best play of the night, scoring the team’s first nine points to pull within 22-21. Fogle started out the second half with an offensive rebound and a put-back hoop in the lane. Another second-chance bucket by Gillette helped Harrison stay within 29-26 in the half but another Tawas run, this time a 13-2 string gave it a 42-26 lead. Gillette started the third quarter off with a dad hard shot that rolled in off the rim, but the second half and ultimately the game would belong to the Hornets as they went on a 16-12 run to take control with a 52-32 edge.

Ashcroft was able to stop the Hornet run with two points each, Cooper and Tawas lead far enough as they sent Harrison's Cam Ashcroft slices through the lane for two points during Monday's road loss.
